To: Faculty Senate
From: Don Adams, Chair of the Curriculum Committee
Date: 3/9/2012

On March 7, 2012, the Curriculum Committee met and approved the following items. On behalf of the Curriculum Committee, I submit these items for the approval of the Faculty Senate at its meeting on Monday, March 12, 2012.

1. Minor Changes:

- delete "English majors and minors only" from the end of the description for ENG 298, since the restriction is explicit in the prerequisite for the course.
- several years ago the course number for Pre-Calculus was changed from 121 to 116; all occurrences of MATH 121 need to be replaced with 116; here are MATH courses that refer to 121 and need to change the "121" to "116":
 - MATH 101
 - MATH 119
 - MATH 135
 - MATH 152

New Version: "Media production and performance (for students wishing to emphasize all aspects of the production of stories, including study in theoretical, critical, and aesthetic foundations as well as instruction in technical approaches and innovations in media production);"

2.4.2. Add explanatory note after "Media Production and Performance Track" and before "Required courses (9 credits)"

Explanatory Note: "[In this track, students create documentaries, public service announcements, podcasts, websites, films, blogs and learn about new trends in the field of media, including formats in entertainment and news for delivery across platforms.]"

FYS 104 Apocalypse 101: Why the World Won't End on December 21, 2012

Dr. Kristine Larsen, Physics and Earth Sciences Dept.

Thanks to The History Channel, the film 2012, and numerous websites, the idea that the Mayan calendar predicts the end of the world (or at least the end of humankind) on December 21, 2012 is widespread in American culture. But just how much science is behind the hysteria? What kinds of catastrophes could (in theory) pose a threat to our planet and the various life forms on it? Count down to the end of 2012 by exploring the fact and fiction behind these apocalypse scenarios and hone both your critical thinking skills and your understanding of how science (and scientists) really operates.

Topics to be covered include: Science, Myth, and Religion; The Scientific Method; Science and Pseudoscience; Science and the Media; The History of Apocalypse Movements; Calendar systems; Astronomical Alignments; Solar storms; Supernovas and Gamma Ray Bursts; Asteroid and Comet Impacts; Magnetic Pole Shifts; Supervolcanoes, Earthquakes and Tsunamis; Alien invasions; Pandemics; Diseases from Space; Nuclear weapons and Nuclear Accidents; Global Climate Change; Large Hadron Collider and Black Holes; Biological and Chemical warfare; Human Evolution; How the Earth, Sun, and Universe will Really Die

6. Proposal for a single yearly catalog:

The Faculty requests that the Office of Marketing and Communications re-design the CCSU Graduate and Undergraduate Catalogs in the following five ways.

- (1) Eliminate dangerous duplications where the catalog might give outdated or contradictory information to students. Instead, the catalog should merely provide links to websites that are updated in a timely fashion by the appropriate key officers. This applies especially, though not exclusively, to information regarding Financial Aid and the Bursar. Consult with each department or office affected before deleting information from the catalog.
- (2) Re-design the online catalog, optimizing the layout so the content is native to a web browser. The primary goal of the re-design should be to make easily accessible the information that advisors and students need. Through the Curriculum Committee, consult with the Faculty and with CACE on the effectiveness of the new design.
- (3) While keeping absolutely clear the distinction between Graduate and Undergraduate programs, as well as the distinction between Graduate and Undergraduate courses, produce one unified CCSU catalog instead of separate, and possibly conflicting, Graduate and Undergraduate catalogs. The target date for going live should be June 1 of every year. An archive of earlier catalogs should be easily accessible, but the main link to the CCSU catalog should take users directly to the current catalog.
- (4) Work with the Chair of the Curriculum Committee to develop a process by which corrections are made and checked for accuracy through the academic year instead of all at once, as was necessary in the proofreading process prior to a print run.
- (5) Continue looking for efficient ways to create a pdf version of the catalog.
